Abstract

- Local city crisis has become a critical issue in Korean urban planning, but often considered as a central government related matter.
- But the crisis seems to have been caused by endogenous factors in many aspects, and this presentation tries to search for the causes with an internal view.
- Expansion-oriented urban planning 'to be like Seoul' were found to be the main factors, and a policy switch to mitigation planning needs to be a new custom to deal with the crisis.

The seminar will be in English.
